

Danilo Gelman

Danilo Gelman is currently the director of security, crisis management and counterterrorism programs for the Latin American Jewish Congress.

These programs have strategic, political and academic articulations whose general purpose is to improve the capacities of the communities and the authorities both in security and in preparation for crisis situations, generating awareness in the fight against terrorism.

Danilo Gelman focused his specialization on creating, developing and maintaining crisis management teams of the Jewish communities of Latin America, through the generation of protocols, training and exercises / simulations aimed at increasing the capacities of the communities to respond to different types of crisis and emergencies.

Originally from Argentina, Gelman has more than 20 years of experience in the field of strategic security and in preparing organizations to face adverse situations, both at the corporate level and in other types of organizations, advising and leading different types of projects; supporting efforts to prevent and combat threats to security, including preparing organizations to face different types of crises.

His training and field work were acquired in different countries in Latin America, Europe and the Middle East.

Danilo is also an advisory member of international organizations that fight against terrorism, combat the threat of security and organized crime.